

WANT PRESIDENT TO SIT FOR PORTRAIT

Yale's Frogcatcher,
Business Being Dead,
Joins the Marines

More than 30,000 Italians headed by the most prominent American residents of the race in this country have already signed petitions to have President Woodrow Wilson sit for his portrait—to be painted by Giuseppe Trotta—one of the foremost living Italian artists of the world—which is to be presented to the Italian government as a token of the work of the Americans of Italian birth in the liberation of Italy in the world war. The painting is to be hung in the government's art gallery.

Giuseppe Trotta—the artist who has been chosen to paint the portrait of President Wilson—is a native of Pescara, Italy. He studied at the Art Student League in New York city, and also at the National Academy of New York—where he won a number of monetary prizes and medals for his excellent technique.

"There isn't much doing in the frog line now," says Charon. "Before the war you used to hear them churning out their cries of 'Jug of rum! Jug of rum!' but now you can't find any of the creatures down our way. Besides, there's no market since the laboratory men have all gone to the Marine Corps."

Charon is six feet and one inch in height. The marines consider him a good addition to their fighting corps.
